It started at about 08:00 after a walk-out of students from schools in Edinburgh. About 30,000 pupils - many of them demonstrating for a second time this year - are taking part in the strike. With the Scottish Government and the opposition demanding the return of £350m in student loan repayments it is the third such walk-out of the academic year. The protest ended at 12:20, although teachers continued to protest on their own picket lines. There are reports of about 30 protests taking place in other parts of Scotland. Pupils outside the Scottish Parliament staged a protest last year. On that occasion, the strike was abandoned as planned after Labour MSP Mary Fee, who chairs the education committee, was due to receive a delegation. Home affairs committee Image caption Scott Nicolson, of the Scottish National Party, said the demonstration had a "deteriorating effect" on social cohesion Scottish Secretary Alistair Carmichael said the demonstration in Edinburgh was "disappointing" and the SNP had "no place" for the protesters. "We have a strong commitment to the status quo," he told BBC Scotland. "We have been very clear since the changes were announced that we are committed to the continuation of the reforms." The Scottish Conservatives said the demonstration was " e79caf774b
