Oberg's Range Oberg's Range () is a range of low hills about long, on the north side of the Filchner Ice Shelf, Wiencke Coast, a mountainous area in Queen Maud Land, Antarctica. The range was discovered and photographed from the air in December 1958 by the Third German Antarctic Expedition. It was mapped from air photos by the Sixth Norwegian

Antarctic Expedition in 1960–61, and named for J.W.Oberg, second-in-charge with the Norwegian whaling ship Danmark during an Antarctic cruise in 1957.

Netty ChannelBootstrap:
runChannelInitialized method is not called when channel is not null I'm using the Netty ChannelBootstrap to create and bind an http server with Jetty and angularjs. When I'm closing the browser which invokes the http request, Netty throws a java.lang.IllegalStateException: Channel not yet bound. I've been searching for many hours on google, and to me it seems that the `runChannelInitialized` method is not called when the socket is already closed. I've checked that `setServerSocket` is being called on the bootstrap, and also the server socket is bound before the client sends the request through `socket.send()`. If anyone has any advice or a workaround, I'd greatly appreciate your help. A: I've read this Here the Netty stops accepting new connections.

So you will not get the exceptions. When you close a socket there will not be any connection anymore. 120722-I-1
